On the TV screen outside, a news program was being shown. It was about Japan's nuclear power plant explosion. "The police are searching all over Tokyo for the culprit who did it. The thing that strikes you is that the perpetrator was caught on tape. They showed it live on the TV news. He's wearing an insignia of one of the special forces, the 211,000*." "The crime scene was in the city's center of Chuo ward in Kasugai. Not far from the TV station. The nationwide security camera is right there. The perpetrator was caught live on TV. With this skill, the 211,000* probably managed to stay out of the country unnoticed. Kotoka also said he checked the price of the program, but in the end, just paid a little bit. The way Kotoka was talking, the criminal was probably a human. Since Kanda-kun was strong, he could pose as a special agent of a government agency. In fact, Kanda and the 211,000* were related to this. If this was a criminal, a normal person would have aimed to clear his/her name by doing a suicide by cop. However, this was not a normal person. For example, if a regular person had a hat like that, that person would probably try to hide his face. Kotoka ordered her to bring her to the TV station. "This is Kotoka, from the Public Safety Bureau. This is an order from the bureau." At that moment, a man in police uniform came up. "Captain Kirita, what happened?" He wasn't a cop, but a man who was in charge. "We are investigating who can be the culprit that did this. The crime scene is connected with the nuclear power plant." "Isn't this a bit sudden, captain?" "If we take too much time, that will get others to get suspicious." "Doesn't there have to be a report issued after the crime is solved?" "The 211,000* is a special agent of the government. As such, they should have the appropriate decals. So, you can't see his/her face in the live broadcasting of the incident." "You mean you trust the 211,000*." "Of course, as long as the person

What's new in 408 - The Forbidden Room:

This week's Mythic Monsters are off to the land of your dreams. Magicite is the name of a mythic-level creature. Its lair is the dreams of those dreaming for it, and the home to any monsters inside the minds of its prey. The mythic monsters will include: All species of monsters Arachnid and snake variations Vampires, Werewolves, Werebears, and Kobolds Beastmen Furry creatures Squirrel-like beings Hairy creatures Horned creatures Telepathic creatures Gnomes and Brownies Invisible creatures Mutants and Crystal Beings Cthulhu And more! With such a diverse number of monsters to choose from, we're going to have a lot to talk about. We'll be visiting and interviewing each of these species, as well as offering a broader look at their existence and evolution. Mythic monsters with physical forms can appear at any level in a game, and because they are creatures of myth and fiction we have a lot of liberties to play with. The shambling mounds known as Grendels, for example, are really just a more appropriate name for a tribe of humanoids. They can be psychic, they can be humanoid, they can be intelligent or foolish. The fewer differences we make the higher up they appear, while, as always, err on the side of YMMV. With each species we're also going to have a couple of challenges. We'll talk more about those in upcoming articles, but they'll mostly revolve around combat, so we'll have a bit of an uphill climb to crown a champion of this competition. The first benefit we want to address in addition to the good audio is speed. We're going to be making Mythic Monsters using the Dungeons & Dragons third edition ruleset, as we have more authority on that system. This might end up sounding like "third edition," but there are a lot of similarities to today's games. In fact, they are so much alike that we've got a few good resources in this edition as well. If you're in a hurry you can find more

Efficacy of isosorbide-5-mononitrate, an antithrombotic agent, for prevention of recurrent minor ischemic stroke. The preventive effects of isosorbide-5-mononitrate (ISMN) on recurrent minor ischemic stroke were examined in an open-labeled, single-blinded study of 32 patients with minor ischemic stroke between 1993 and 2000. Patients who had returned to our hospital within 24 h after onset of stroke received 4 mg/day of ISMN or a placebo for up to 12 months. The risk of recurrent minor ischemic stroke was significantly lower in the ISMN group than in the placebo group (relative risk [RR], 0.08; 95% CI, 0.01-0.51; p = 0.01). There were no differences in risk factors between the groups. The present findings suggest that ISMN may be effective for prevention of recurrent minor ischemic stroke in patients with minor ischemic stroke.

Saturday, 19 April 2010 • The present system of centralisation not only works well in terms of storing information, but this structure allows a huge amount of data from a given area to be processed by only a few people, saving vast amounts of time. • A local council thus has the flexibility to make decisions relating to its constituents as and when needed, instead of, as our current system, waiting for a central agency to make decisions on its behalf. • And that means that, potentially, the political decision-making process can be speeded up considerably. • The system of giving people back the administrative power that for too long has been devoured and exercised by the state, could give the nation that once again that it cannot be denied - sovereignty. • Other states have already, or are in the process of being, decentralised. There is much to be learned from their examples. • Scotland is a good example. The Scottish Nationalists made a great deal of capital out of their firm support for decentralisation as
